

Riley Moore, Ph.D.

Dr. Riley Moore is the Director for International Business Programs and an Associate Professor of Economics for the School of Business at Saint Martin's University in Lacey, Washington. He received his Ph.D. and MBA from Mississippi State University and B.S. from the University of Washington. He has received numerous teaching honors and has research interests in regional economic development and international trade. He is also currently a board member for the Pacific Northwest Regional Economics Conference. Saint Martin's University's has an active business program with the Pudong Business Administration College at Shanghai Maritime University and Riley travels frequently to China for the School of Business. He just recently returned from his twelfth trip to China this last month.